Warriors Gather in Anaheim

by Allison Bown
Director of TWC

At our recent Brilliant Event, “The Epiphany,” almost half of The Warrior Class gathered for two days of training, worship, prayer and soaking in Graham’s powerful teaching. It was a time to experience just what an amazing community we have become and look forward to all that is ahead.

The timing of our gathering in Anaheim was excellent. Leaders were able to come together and process what our current TWC upgrades mean for them and members were able to gain greater clarity about our future possibilities. The atmosphere throughout our time was one of anticipation, joy and authenticity. Great questions. Brilliant thoughts. Relational focus.

But what I loved most was seeing you all as both the army and family that you are. You moved between these two personas flawlessly. You embraced the times to share from your hearts, laugh and revel in connecting faces with names, making new friends. You dove into our times of dialogue and training, soaked in the wisdom and equipping and opened your hearts to all that the Father was pouring into you.

Whether you were with us in person or with us in spirit, your presence and commitment to those days in Anaheim will be long remembered. We’ve tried to capture as much of that as we could in these pages.

I think for all of my days, when I remember The Warrior Class, I will see us encircling the meeting room of a 1000 chairs, praying in the Spirit – and when the space opened in the Spirit, to joyfully run to meet all God had for us to come into.

Thank you for your open hearts, your willingness to risk and your extreme generosity, not only with your time and travel, but in your gifts to Bob Book and Graham...and your beautiful cards to me.

You are truly a Band of Brothers who are exceedingly abundant. I look forward to all that we’re graduating into.

– Allison

The Nature of Kingdom Transition

Summary of Allison's talk at the TWC Training Day

What we're discovering on our Warrior Class journey are the stages of transition that are emerging. This isn't just for us corporately, but parallels how God works personally as we transition from one Kingdom landscape to the next.

First is a time of discovery. It's where all transition begins. For us this has been the initial five years of The Warrior Class. This has been a time to love the learning, both of what worked and what didn't. We discovered how to refine prophetic input into crafted intercession, which led to our Key Territories of intercession. That was a huge discovery!

We continue to discover how to live in the paradox of being an army and a family. We learned to speak a new language as warriors and overcomers. A whole new vocabulary for intercession and warfare has emerged. We grew into a new culture of Kingdom leadership and development. We gained clarity as to the obstacles in actually living and abiding in the life of a Spiritual Warrior and learned what displaces them and how we overcome them with joy.

Now we are in a time of establishing and expanding, the second stage of transition.

What we've had has been wonderful, but what is possible now?
What levels of acceleration do we have a capacity for that we didn't start with?
What worked well before but has an upgrade now on offer?
What is good that can be upgraded to great?

In this stage, we're taking on the giant of security through placement/title and overcoming it with our growing confidence in our placement in Christ. It won't be which team we are on that gives us our identity, but who we know ourselves to be in Jesus. That's going to be enjoyable.

On the horizon, is a stage of contribution – when what we've discovered, expanded and established can be shared with the Kingdom at large – whether they've had access to Graham's teaching yet or not. We're taking notes for that time and will continue to love our learning.

You can apply this lens to your own personal development as well.

Are you in a time of discovery or of establishing and expanding?

Are there areas that you are preparing to bring to the Kingdom at large, not just in your personal life with God and what is the process of development for that?

- Allison

Epiphany 2016

“God will go to extraordinary lengths to empower you to see yourself the way He sees you. And when you get it... everything changes. It’s His perspective of us that elevates us above ourselves, our circumstances; above the enemy, above unresponsive people.

It is a done deal in the heart of God about how He sees you. All of your life is about seeing yourself the way that He does—and when you see it, a light goes on. That’s an epiphany.”

Friday Evening – Stories of Epiphany

In the first session of this Brilliant Event, Graham shared several of his personal epiphanies, using creative stories, songs and movie clips. Each one was followed by prayer to step into these life changing revelations ourselves.

He began with the light bulb moments that have emerged over the years from how God called Moses into his destiny at the burning bush. The four on-going epiphanies from that passage have been:

1. The understanding that God never takes no for an answer.
2. God is calling me to do the impossible and He will make all the difference. It’s never going to be about who I am not, but only about who He is going to be for me.
3. It’s not easy, but it is going to be totally wonderful. Our perspective is our choice.
4. Whatever God sees, we get to become it—and we get to become it forever. When He reveals Himself, we’re seeing who we are becoming because He’s making us in His image.

The next epiphany came from a movie (one that Graham didn’t particularly care for overall – “Adaptation”) that had one life-changing line. A powerful truth that unlocked a key revelation.

“I learned that I am who I love, not who loves me.”

Theresa Cooke radiates JOY as flags for the Lord

The next story that followed was Graham's personal journey into becoming a writer, when his starting place was very little education and absolutely no experience...and no desire to do so (it's possible the word "panic" was involved). His journey with his mentors to become his prophetic words about writing was not just hilarious and practical—but deeply encouraging to all of us who have been challenged by how we see our lives and how God does. The epiphany here was not a blinding light moment, but the on-going process that transformed the insecurities and inadequacies of Graham's history into a joyful dependency. He combined that with intentionality and training to step into his destiny as a writer, author and publisher.

The final epiphany Graham shared was one he found in a Robert Ludlum book, "The Bourne Identity." The search for identity under duress intrigued him. As he read, God recreated a phrase in the text that has become one of Graham's most well-known truths.

In the story, Jason Bourne remembers his training: "Eat when you can. Sleep when you can. Sleep is a weapon." Except that no matter how many times he looked at it, Graham kept seeing "REST is a weapon," Realizing what was happening, he got out his notebook and began to unpack a truth that many of us have benefit from greatly.

It was a wonderfully unique and creative session that highlighted the fact that God weaves revelation and epiphanies into the fabric of our lives. Sometimes they emerge over time, sometimes in a moment, though all of them require our engagement with the Holy Spirit to unpack and expand them into how we perceive, think and talk about our lives.

Saturday morning – The Key to Effective Learning

The key is your capacity to unlearn what you thought was true. We come to the Kingdom with a past history of what we've been taught, our experiences with people, in the world and sometimes in church. Part of coming into the Kingdom is unlearning our previous perceptions, mindsets and language. We're ever evolving into the fullness of the revelation of Christ and unlearning what our Old Man keeps trying to tell the New Man is still true.

These sessions covered the stories of people in the Bible who needed to unlearn what had previously been true to embrace God's emerging truth: Peter at Cornelius house and Paul/Saul on the road to Damascus.

Sacred Space with Bob Book

There were so many stories and encounters of people for whom this time was truly heaven on earth; of being washed in the reality of God's adoration and love after long times of dry places. Encounters in dancing with Him as His beloved one and of coming into deep places of rest where what had seemed so overwhelming suddenly became so possible with Jesus. It was a time of true renewal as well as a beautiful open space in a packed weekend to enter into an experience of what we were hearing.

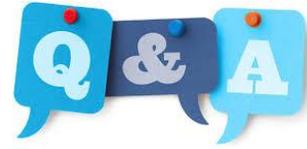

Saturday Evening –

Graham called up our sense of wonder and curiosity in who God will be for us and who He sees us as in whatever it is that we are encountering. We should be filled with questions for God. Epiphanies require a continuing sense of discovery and anticipation that will lead to the formation of your true identity. It's an on-going journey in learning to trust God and for Him to know what He can trust us with.

Once again, Graham used the music that provided breakthrough with "Find Me In the River." The story of his epiphany in the desert wilderness rain was one of the sweetest of the weekend. The vulnerability of the journey and the power of God's kindness were tangible in the room. So many hearts were healed in the prayer that followed.

Which partnered beautifully the songs and stories that each of the band members shared both during this evening and throughout the weekend. Wonderful encounters for us all.

"An epiphany is not one huge event that reorders your world. Life with God is a series of inspirational moments, experiences, revelations where God invades your world His love, value and passion for who you are. They raise the bar for all of us and change the game. Through these opportunities, we start to grow up into all things in Christ. All of us there came away with an expanded capacity to recognize and receive them deeply and able to convert them from an event into a lifestyle."

TWC Training Day Q&A with Graham

Why do Christians believe there is a point of “arriving” spiritually with God? How can this interfere with our intimate relationship with the Father?

Graham: “When we come into the Kingdom, we come in with all of our baggage from the world; its way of seeing, thinking and speaking...our learned behavior, environment and traditions – it all comes with us. What we’re learning in the New Man is that Jesus took our baggage at the cross and now we have His luggage, His provision to unpack and explore.

We’re learning to trade our perceptions for His perspective.

Our lives are all about what we’re unlearning. Every situation is often about “What do I need to get rid of so that I can grow and develop through these circumstances.”

A lot of Christians think of their journey only in terms of departure and arrival, not everything that happens in between. But as we know, it’s the process that makes us rich, who we learn He is for us in those places and who He sees us as. Even when you’re not getting it, you can learn about His affection and enjoyment of the learning even if we’re not.

It’s what we’re doing in The Warrior Class, is getting everyone to love the learning and benefit from every part of their journey. If you love your learning as much as God loves your learning, you’re going to do really well!

I think there’s so much more to your story than one book can contain. What if we’re not just writing chapters, but an entire series of books that will become an epic? I wonder how many of us are realizing that we’ve come to an end of our current story, not just our current chapter.

What if the next part of your story doesn’t need to be in this book, but is the beginning of a new one?

Continued...

That way, you don't have to read through all of the old stuff to get to this point. It's simply you in a completely different life now and that's where this story starts. How many of us right now need to make a decision with the Lord to begin a new story?

I think it would be good for some of us to realize that "This is over and I'm on a different level now. Time for a new journal. Time for a new story. It doesn't make the first one invalid. It just means "I'm in a different time and place and I don't need to join these two stories. They're separate books."

When we're walking with God, the story is relentless. God is relentless in teaching us joy, peace, rest and in His kindness. It's a never ending story and it requires new books, new sense of excitement and anticipation about what you're going to learn now. What am I going to learn this year and next? Where could my life go now that it couldn't have a few years ago, but now it can? I want to write about that.

I want to write about the beauty of my life, not just the substance of it or checking off a bucket list: "Must learn patience," but instead, learning about the beauty of patience. What about the beauty of overwhelming the enemy, not just overcoming them?

Just because you're going through something you've been through before doesn't mean you haven't started a new book. You are meant to revisit certain areas of your life, just let it be at a higher and higher level. Until you get to a level where it can't reach you. Levels are a part of what we're learning. Vision isn't just about the direction you're going in, it's about the height God wants you to travel at."

"When we're walking with God, the story is relentless.

God is relentless in teaching us joy, peace, rest and in His kindness."

Within Wheels: How God Positions Us

by Christine Casten
Assistant Director for TWC

The Epiphany Conference and Warrior Class Training Day gave us a lot of treasure to unpack!

We are now commissioned as Warrior Ambassadors who facilitate Kingdom Impact. We link arms together and move forward in unity.

We rise to the level of our training and we train at the highest level!

We learned how our community is like a kaleidoscope. As the wheel at the end turns you see a large circle form. Then as it turns some more, you see the individual tiles reform into a lot of smaller circles. When we come together for Training Days, it is like the large circle. Then as we continue throughout the year, all the other training opportunities, calls, team interaction, etc. look like the smaller circles as each of our individual “tiles” join together in different ways.

Like we discussed in Ezekiel 1:15-21, God inserts Himself into our lives providing the heavenly provision we need to see His promises for our lives fulfilled.

We are a community of wheels within wheels, guided by the intimacy developed through our time with the Lord.

We looked back at “The Archer” word from last year. (See: “The Power of Collective Wisdom and Establishing Territory” Journal) We discovered that God packed a lot more in that word that extends to our now! We pulled out some excerpts:

“We are positioned in the heights because, with our Chief Archer (Jesus)....In our other hand is a compass. It points to our True North, the One who leads us into new territories of exploration. It is the compass that holds the blessing of finding our way in unknown territory, exploring beyond what we currently understand...”

We know it is His arrow that will signal...The new season will begin... Some of us will stand and release our arrows toward the targets below. Others will sprint toward the next territory, compass in hand. As explorers, we recognize that this [compass] is a weapon. It points to the new territory. It points to the wide expanses that are not part of the battle ground before us. We know that some will hold in this place to shoot arrows into the clash below, while others will take a turn exploring beyond, finding the new ground and uncovering treasures to bring back and share.”

God saw our direction. He recognized we were heading into a new season.

He released the word so we knew some would stay and shoot the arrows of intercession...our Key Territory focus (current small teams), while others would explore beyond. Exploring beyond was done both by our leaders who discovered and developed our new structure, but also by our Warrior Team newer members who pioneered where we are going.

But there was a part of the vision that was not shared last year. It was a vision that looked beyond the “plain” we explored and represents our time of transition to the mountain range beyond. That mountain range represents the territory our whole community will explore: The Key Territory of Limitless Possibilities. Through it we will explore passions and advanced opportunities for growth; wide open possibilities for what that looks like and the many faceted ways we can train.

POSSIBILITIES: MOVING FROM INSPIRATION TO REALIZATION

We all have had the experience when the rush of excitement runs through our spirits and minds as the possibility of something new happening strikes us. It awakens passion and creativity when inspiration bursts forth.

POSSIBILITY!!! “Houston, we have lift off!”; but the very next phase is most important. How do we move this newly discovered possibility from inspiration to realization?

In my talk I shared how we must begin to ask good questions. If we are going to see a possibility come to life we need to know what might keep us from seeing our possibility come to life.

I encouraged everyone to add their own questions to my list and to use this process every time a new possibility presents itself.

The challenges that we might face were presented and that we must address these with “INSTEADS” – our IDENTITY STATEMENTS – our PROMISES – our SCRIPTURES and the truth of how God sees this possibility through His lens.

Using the passage from Acts chapter 1 it is Jesus laid out a caring and deliberate process for the disciples. A process that challenged them but called them up higher to step into the authority He had placed upon their lives. They didn’t know what it would look like but they took one small step at a time . . . the step right in front of them.

I left everyone with a dollar rolled and held by a wedding band with the word POSSIBILITIES attached to it. I challenged them to look for how God would use this possibility in their hand to impact and make a difference. I invited TWC members to share the stories from their experiences.

Eric shared on Face Book how a woman came to know Jesus at Epiphany because of how God used the dollar Eric had.

Nothing is impossible with God. Oh how The Father loves the possibilities that He places within our hands. – Faith

POSSIBILITIES: MOVING YOUR POSSIBILITIES FROM INSPIRATION TO REALIZATION

Faith Donaldson’s Question
Sheet:

What excites you when you see possibilities before you?

What opportunities wait for you within the possibilities before you?

What promises have you been given that are tied to the possibilities before you?

How are you willing to participate in seeing your possibilities realized?

What capabilities do you bring to the possibilities before you?

What is your level of expectancy as you see the possibilities before you?

“A Coach Leads from Identity”

By: Eric Dykstra
Warrior Team Coach

How would you define a coach? Does what you wrote or thought describe what a coach does or what a coach is? The definition of a coach from the 1500's was a covered carriage that took a person of importance from where they were to where they desired to go. A coach in TWC will provide a covering of grace and love, a safe place to explore and learn at your own pace and priority. A coach sees each person as important, the way God sees them. A coach can help inspire and empower a person to get from where they are to where they want to be!

A coach must lead out of the place of identity, from who they really are. When a coach leads from who they are, it is much more influential. A coach cannot do or perform any part of the process for those they are coaching.

They help others enter the process of growth/development for themselves, because it's much more powerful when they discover it for themselves.

A coach impacts those they are coaching in three dimensions: body, mind, and spirit. The person must adjust their life by pacing, prioritizing, and organizing around development. The person's mind, areas of confidence, emotions, teamwork, and motivation are impacted. The spirit is impacted, such as identity, significance, self-worth, character, values, and purpose. When all three areas of life are impacted, a person will benefit on many different levels; such as learning at an accelerated pace, bouncing back quicker, becoming more peaceful, being more open to possibilities, able to adapt to circumstances.

A coach is always believing, seeing, and speaking to the best in people.
This is the powerful role of the prophetic in TWC.

A coach will speak to the identity of those they are coaching by hearing, perceiving, and speaking in the way that God intended in the Kingdom.

When we are coached well, we can experience life like Mario, in Mario Brothers. We enter the world and we are small. As we go through the different levels, we have access to upgrades, much like the video game. The mushroom that makes us big, this is the role of our identity. Our identity gives us strength to overcome any obstacle. The flower is the role of the Holy Spirit within us. It gives us the fire power to take out obstacles in front of us. The leaf is the role of the word, prayer, worship, and rejoicing, giving us the ability to soar higher in the spirit and see life from an elevated perspective. The star, our promises and prophesies, make us invincible and able to live as more than a conquer.

It was an honor to share at the TWC Training Day.

Connecting the Dots – Relationally

Wei Stephens flew in from Canada. I was so blessed to finally meet her in person. ☺

“Our language, perceptions and evidence of transformation is heard all over our community.”

By Teresa Morrison

Director of New Members

Introducing Mackenzie Bailey
TWC Member Services Administrator

As I stood up to talk to those in TWC at our Training Day, my heart swelled with excitement to finally connect with those that I’ve communicated with in an interview, conference call or on Facebook. We met face-to-face, gathering from all over the country. We have no limits on how we can connect.

What I shared is how the Lord has brought us all together to travel shoulder to shoulder and to practice what we’re learning within TWC in real-life situations. This is the way we expand the capacity inside of us, and transform from the inside, out. We all have the opportunity to practice “Becoming the Beloved” as we learn to see ourselves as God sees us.

Living in our insteads (Isaiah 61)

TWC has grown. Our language, perceptions and evidence of transformation is heard all over our community. As I facilitate conference calls, we dialogue about how we are moving from base camp to “Living on a Higher Place”. Your stories move me. It is in those real-life situations that we get to practice our training, decide how we are going to show up, and gain territory.

When interviewing new members, I used to suggest finding prayer partners in their communities if personal prayer was needed. But as time went by, I realized that our language has been upgraded to living in the insteads (Isaiah 61). We now ask, “What is God doing instead? What part of His heart are you exploring? What part of His nature are you experiencing?” I love questions that lead people to an encounter with God. We are explorers and we find treasures in hidden places!

Oh the joy of transformed lives! (Psalms 34:1-3)

Graham’s stories of his encounters with the Lord awaken us to the beauty of the Father’s heart for each one of us. His wisdom and journey helps us to see what is possible for our own lives. And guess what? God wants to bring you to the place where you will be the one telling the stories, sharing your experiences and encounters that will in turn set others in a forward motion and awaken those that hear.

In closing, I want to challenge each of you to live the life you’ve dreamed of. Go after your identity and wear it well – there is only one of you and you are an important piece of the TWC community!

In Christ’s affection,
Teresa

New Mindsets

By Ana Cross
Lead Coach

As Papa has continued to walk with me on the journey to becoming more like Him, with His perspective, His heart for joy and His lens for all His children, He's been highlighting areas where my own thought processes are holding me back.

As a coach, my mental attitude has to be free of all negativity in order to draw others into a Heavenly mindset!

So He's been FLOODING me with Permissions Granted! From cultural norms (you are free to wear white in the Fall - or any other time you want!) to old hurts (free to forgive your church and its members) to childhood training (free to stop comparing yourself to others, ignoring your feelings, trying to do it all and free to love the sinner with kindness), and every other negative thought trying to hide from my thought cleaning vacuum!

Get out a paper and pen and ask Papa to show you what old mindsets need vacuuming out of your brain, and get ready to write like crazy!

How we Connect in TWC

By Joe Gray
Lead Coach

*Faith Donaldson
introducing Joe Gray*

With the changing landscape of TWC, the ability to make connections is more important than ever! And there's nothing like meeting face-to-face—taking full advantage of the warrior time in Anaheim, or at other Graham events.

But what about throughout the year? Tools like Free Conference call are certainly useful. We also have access to Go To Meeting, and Free Video Conference Call.

More recently, we have been posting videos to Facebook – technology is wonderful to both see and hear people's hearts.

So my question in our Leadership time was: In this new landscape of Warrior Team and Champions Team, what tools will you use to facilitate connection?

- Joe Gray

Follow Your Heart in Coaching

By Madeline Rooney
Lead Coach

Sharing about Evidences of Transformation was a delight and I was personally impacted to engage further on the topic.

Responding to Evidence of Transformation's are a matter of the heart and can often come from a place of vulnerability. Knowing God's heart for us must become our starting place. I experienced this first hand when I became stuck as I considered how to begin my talk.

After 2+ weeks went by with nothing, God led me to everything, and that was my relationship as a much-loved child. I like to say it was an epiphany because I hadn't realized I had stepped away from being a much loved child.

It was a precious moment that aligned my heart with His and to think from my identity. From there, I could step into being a mature son who understands transformation from the heart.

Here is an acronym to follow your heart in coaching Evidence of Transformation:

HEART

Honor for where a member is at. There are no wrong responses.

Explore and engage with God's heart for the member.

Ask questions & assess. How are they acclimating? How much grace will they need to motivate them to come up higher.

Respond in agreement, targeting upgrades for each evidence.

Trust the one who promises to transform and restore from within.

- Madeline

Waking up Your Inner Man Activation

By Kelly Megonigle
Director of Training

One of the great joys of having so many of us in a room at the same time is the opportunity to have dialogue and interact. We were able to do a couple of activations that were quite impactful.

For the first activation we did Waking up Your Inner Man (an activation Graham Cooke did at Way of the Warrior and has in the Warrior Journals).

We stood shoulder to shoulder on the battlefield and grew in stature, confidence and courage together! We also did an activation taking the Insteads a bit further and were able to dialogue on not only the instead but putting that instead into action – we came away with lots of ideas to try and out as I'm sure the groups did as well! A room full of warriors packs a powerful punch in the Spirit – a true joy in journeying together.

- Kelly

What did Graham teach on that was new and revelatory to you?

I was incredibly touched when Graham talked about his heart for my generation, millennials, at the training day. I felt empowered and ready to win!
– Mackenzie Bailey

So many good nuggets to mine! What stands out to me is a deeper revelation of "Christ in me". I am having to unlearn the thought of "following Jesus" as if we are separate on this journey. Instead of wondering if I am keeping up with Jesus, am I following well, is this a hand in hand journey, etc. I realized that with Christ in me, and I am in Him we are always together. So I can stop looking for Him "out there" and instead just relax and move with Him, together, as one.
– Charlotte Allen

Epiphanies are not always Damascus road huge events, they can be everyday things that bring revelation and guidance to change. – Patricia Mohr

There were two comments Graham made on the night he incorporated all the songs. The first was, "You are the dream of God." This simple statement had a profound impact on my heart, and just meditating on that thought, allowed love to well up in me to a new level.

The second comment he made was, "You and I are the same." This was in terms of what God would say to us. This is profound, that we have Christ in us, and God sees us through the lens of His son. It was a great reminder to me of how I think and view myself before Him. It empowers to think and dream at a higher level!
– Eric Dykstra

The concept of Epiphany was made real in my own life through what he taught. I now realize I've had many epiphanies previously but didn't give them the credit and recognition they deserved as life-changing thoughts and realities.

I now move forward with a keen sense of interest and expectation for epiphanies in my every day world. In the week since I have seen them at work, at home, and in my personal time with the Father! – Jeff Green

How do you plan on living out what Graham taught?

I am intentionally praying the love of God and taking steps to move into a territory that there are people wanting the love of God to enter physically, emotionally and spiritually no longer in words and religion but in action, love and connection. Right now, I am mentoring 18-25 year olds on Saturdays in Boulder, Colorado.

- Lori Mateer

There are no accidents in Gods' Kingdom. A lady that I sat next to on Saturday was chained by a circumstance that I have been freed from. She was disappointed that Graham's The Nature of Freedom was sold out. I just happened to have an extra copy that I gave to her Sunday Morning. Just sharing His love!

- Ray Otto

God opened up my understanding of how He desires to work with me in using my style and creativity. There will be more speaking, a book or more, and a new adventure of sharing the wealth of knowledge that He has given to me over the years on healing the brokenhearted. God also healed a wound that I was not aware of when one of the Brilliant Band members shared his story. In less than five minutes the wound was revealed, mourned, healed and I moved into freedom. I have literally dozens of epiphanies to unpack over the weeks ahead.

- Faith Donaldson

This conference was so much fun! It is so wonderful to be able to genuinely express the joy and confidence of being a Christian. Truly Graham was right when he jumped up and down crying out, "The Christians are here! The Christians are here! Hurrah!" That is how the good news is meant to impact the world!

Blessings in Christ,
Georgia White

If you have been to other TWC Training Days, how was this one different?

The personal connections that were moving. The evening of worship. The personal connection: from the card with the word Allison wrote in each; the Warrior Class pin; and the ministry given to each of us during this time of the training.

- Michelle Bell

This one was different as we were pushed and encouraged to own more of our identity and to grow up in the fullness of what we represent. In the middle of change it's easy to feel uncertain and to look for structure to hold on to. Confidence, courage, and creativity was fostered to overcome those mindsets and to push deeper and further.

- Jeff Green

TWC'ers AT THE BEACH!

Coming together as Leaders was something to behold. What I witnessed reflecting from the core leaders was set over those of us that are Team Leaders and Team Partners like a blueprint or copy of sorts. The love and melting, weaving together as a unit I felt in the spirit in all the leaders. We stepped out of the old, business as usual, into the new wide expansion before us where anything is possible. All we have to do is dream big and partner with the Holy Spirit. Sweet and exciting! - Charlotte Allen

I really enjoyed Jimetta Mayne's session. She discussed the importance of developing a heart capacity for others in order to enter into their process. She shared about how she would write out a crafted prophetic word for herself when she was trying to get God's heart and intention for another person, especially if they were a challenging person. - Eric Dykstra

Powerful Moment

One of the most powerful moments at our Training Days was during the member Q&A. I was about to answer the question of a newer member, who felt a bit overwhelmed by the expanse of TWC and how to manage it. Instead of answering, I first asked:

"How many of you have felt like that in TWC?"
Almost every hand went up!

So I continued, "How many of you felt like everyone else was getting it faster or better than you were?"
Again, almost every hand in the room was raised.

What followed was laughter, joy and recognition that a lie had just been shattered and an old man mindset was overcome. The enemy had used these worn out deceptions on almost every member and told them it was just them:

"It's too much."
"You're too slow."
"Everyone else is getting it. Why can't you?"

Just one of many heaven on earth moments that is unique to being in the same room together!

- Allison

Faith Donaldson wrote a prophetic word for every single leader, and wrapped it in what looked like a diploma. It was personal and displayed her huge heart for every leader that pours into others in TWC!

- Teresa Morrison

Faith shared the story in Acts 1 how Jesus taught his apostles after He rose from the dead about the Kingdom of God. The apostles were full of many questions and no answers and clarity were given except the promise, "But you will receive power when the Holy Spirit comes on you..." Then Jesus was taken up before their very eyes.

When Faith waved so freely and full of peace as she felt Jesus might have, it locked up something in me that finds safety in "knowing and answers" and released a deeper faith in Holy Spirit. Faith highlighted the peace/understanding the apostles had after they took a days walk to Jerusalem. Holy Spirit is in our process, in our unknowing and is not worried at all for us! - Lori Mateer

Thank you, thank you, thank you!
From Bob & Barb Book

Barb and I so enjoyed our evening of worship with all of you at the TWC training days, ahead of The Epiphany in Anaheim. We felt loved and embraced in your company. There was such a sweet sense of God's presence and spirit of worship in the room. As ever, it was a joy to worship with you.

Then there is the love offering you gave us... Your unreasonable generosity completely overwhelms us! It is one more way in which you, as individuals and as a company, demonstrate the character and nature of our God. You have blessed us!

Your friends,
Bob & Barb Book

As I rested in the Lord during Bob Books worship service a new thought, word came to mind. I've heard Graham say , " pull from heaven" but I heard "draw ". So I did. I went to such a deep place, (deep calling to deep) that I wept for joy. What freedom. Thank you Jesus. Thank you Bob. Try it. I would love to hear what you experience. – Charlotte Allen

The worship was wonderful it was God speaking to me as I opened my heart to Him. It was a moment of secrets that my King and I were sharing! – Zelda Cronje

The atmosphere was a spiritual soaking. Bob created an undergirding of presence that was amplified by all the warriors. This was personal, corporate, and burst outside the walls! – Michelle Bell

Thank you to our TWC Volunteers!

- TWC Table
- Registration
- Conference greeters
- Volunteers for offering

To our wonderful, dedicated, energetic greeters! Thank you so much for your contribution to The Epiphany. Looking at the doors and seeing all of your smiling, joy-filled faces as you greeted each person passing through was such a treat. I say it every year and it is no small thing – we couldn't have done it without you!

Thank you!

A BIG thank you to our volunteers that worked in TWC registration (Madeline Rooney, Libby Kinkead, Mackenzie Bailey). Organizing the Pizza Social (Joe Gray) collecting finances for the social (Karleigh Wood). TWC table at the conference (Kelly Megonigle, Faith Donaldson, Kathy Brown and Lori Mateer). Filming the TWC Training Days (Joe Gray). You all worked effortlessly to enhance the atmosphere and bring warm smiles to all! Your JOY is apparent. ☺

Lastly, thanks to everyone that offered your assistance in one way or another. Your generosity is much appreciated.
